Defense Leaders Work On Map In Control Center Here

Fire Chief Vincent L. Malloy, right, and Loren Early, left, plot an air raid incident on the huge map of the city in the Air Raid control center at city hall.

DEFENSE UNIT
SET FOR TESTTrial Mobilization Will Be Held As Prelude To Blackout

A test mobilization of Salem's Civilian Defense aides will be held in the near future, following completion of the air raid control center in city hall.

The trial mobilization of the OGD staff will be a prelude to test blackouts which cannot be held until authorized by the War department. The mobilization, which will bring together auxiliary police and firemen, the air raid wardens and control staff members, probably will be held soon. Fire Chief Vincent Malloy, Civilian Defense commander, said today.

The raid control room aides already have been tested in handling raid incidents, from the time of the yellow, or first, warning light, through the secondary blue warning 15 minutes later and the final alarm sometime before another 15 minutes have elapsed.

The yellow flash is a signal that an air raid in this sector is possible within a half hour. The blue light 15 minutes afterwards increases the likelihood of attack, while the red warning is a signal to plunge the city into a blackout, with all Civilian Defense workers prepared for the emergency.

Much like a systematic game, the control center workers keep track of all air raid incidents on their huge maps and panels in the control room which is completely furnished with blacking out equipment. All windows in the room are light-proof.

Differently marked buttons, to dot the map, are to indicate the positions of high explosive bombs, incendiary bombs, gas, unexploded shells and aircraft bombs.

The incident panel is for noting the location of each incident, any remarks, and the type of service dispatched to the scene.

Members of the control staff include: Commander, Fire Chief Malloy, who is in charge of fire and rescue work.

Men leave Oct. 29 for Army Reception Center At Fort Hayes

BOARD RECEIVES
NOVEMBER CALL

Two Types of Married Men Will Be Summoned Next Month

The Salem draft board today released the names of 85 district selectees who were accepted at the Akron induction station Thursday and disclosed that an early November draft call had been received. Thirty rejections were reported.

Those accepted will leave here by train Thursday afternoon, Oct. 29, for the army reception center at Fort Hayes.

Announcement also was made today by Col. C. W. Goble, state selective service director, that two types of married men—those wed "when induction was imminent" and those wed since Dec. 8—would be called to help fill Ohio's November draft quota.

Present 3-A men who have wives, but no children, with whom they "maintain a bona fide family relationship in their homes" will not be touched immediately, Goble's announcement explained.

Local draft board officials indicated today that they would have to do some "scouring" to find enough men to fill the early November quota which is not quite as large as the two combined October calls.

Col. Goble said that under a "balanced call" for the state as a whole, no one board would call any class of registrants substantially in advance of any other board. In other words, he added, the quota is being filled under what might be called a "state pool."

Goble said that with but a few exceptions, initial classification of all registrants in Ohio had been completed.

There was no comment on the December call, but national selective service officials said this week that if legislation to induct 18-19 year old men was passed promptly it would defer calling of bona fide married classes until after the first of the year.

Here's Jap-Built Guadalcanal Airfield, Held by Yanks

28 TONS OF SCRAP
GATHERED UP HERECollections To Be Resumed
Monday, Continuing All
Next Week

With only one city truck on the job Friday, scrap metal collections totaled only six tons for the day, bringing the total for three days to more than 28 tons.

One of the city trucks could not be used because of an emergency job for the service department, Director Frank Wilson announced.

No collections were being made today, but they will be resumed Monday and continued all next week until all scrap has been trucked into the junk yards. Those who have called about heavy metal again are asked not to call a second time. The trucks will take care of their scrap as soon as possible, and they can be assured that it will be collected.

Many volunteer spotters have joined this all-out scrap metal drive during the last few days, with the result that a large list of heavy scrap has been reported to the committee. A wide variety of scrap materials has been located by these volunteers in alleys, vacant lots, at the rear of homes, in basements and many other places.

"HI-YAH, DAN, FANCY MEETING YOU HERE"

GUADALCANAL, Solomon Islands, Oct. 4.—(Delayed)—When the air raid siren sounded, Lieut. Dan Gaede of Columbus, O., dove into a fox hole.

The army officer landed smack on top of a navy officer who already had taken shelter there.

"Sorry," grinned the army man, "my name is Dan Gaede."

The navy officer grinned and stuck out his hand.

"So is mine," he said, "I am Lieutenant Commander Dan E. Gaede of Coronado, Calif."

They are cousins but never had met before.

DEFENSE LEADER
SPEAKS IN SALEM

Ralph H. Stone of Columbus, director of the Ohio State Defense Council, addressed members of the Salem Civilian Defense council at a meeting Friday noon in the Lape hotel, stressing the necessity of civilian and industrial protection.

Twenty-five attended the meeting, which was presided over by Chairman Ralph Atkinson.

Instructions for blacking out the city and a dim-out of industrial plants in tests were given by Stone who later viewed the city's air raid control center in city hall. He approved the setup which only recently had been O. K'd by A. D. Seawright, district Civilian Defense inspector.

Stone reported that there are 870 defense councils in Ohio, with 500,000 workers now enrolled. He said that in many communities, housewives were serving successfully as air raid wardens.

Later in the day Stone conferred with Fire Chief Vincent Malloy and two city councilmen, C. P. Zimmerman and Charles Cavanaugh, in the control center.

Stone last night addressed Civilian Defense groups at Leetonia.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Death and damage tolls crept upward as the worst flood in Washington's history reached the crest early today and then apparently began to recede slightly.

The capital itself suffered little more than inconvenience because of dikes and other precautions thrown up under President Roosevelt's personal eye.

But the debris-laden Potomac and Rappahannock rivers had marooned thousands and caused millions of dollars worth of damage in low-lying communities of Virginia, West Virginia and Maryland.

Five persons were listed officially as dead due to the floods, and scores were missing. Hardest hit was Fredericksburg, Va., whose 10,000 battled waters 45 feet above usual levels.

Every government building in and near Washington was at work this morning. During the night, levees were thrown up in some sectors, sandbags stacked and debris removed from bridge supports.

Railroad traffic south from Washington also was restored early this morning, relieving congestion at the huge Union station here, where thousands had spent the night.

The Potomac was reported back in its banks near Cumberland, Md., this morning.

PATROL ARRESTS
FOUR MOTORISTS

Four motorists paid fines in district courts Friday on charges filed by Salem state highway patrolmen.

Albert Shultz, 19, of Leetonia, arrested on a charge of driving illegally on a temporary permit, was fined $5 and costs by Mayor Culler at Washingtonville.

James Crowley, 33, of Chicago, charged with reckless driving, was fined $10 and costs, while James Gholson, 22, of Chicago, and Alburn Schaefer, 34, of Fremont, arrested for speeding, were fined $5 and costs each by Mayor Myers at Columbiana.

Outcome Has Not Yet Been Determined, Says Secretary Knox

Nipponese At Kiska Are Reported Under Heavy Bombardment

By ROGER D. GREENE,
Associated Press War Editor.

Washington naval quarters today forecast a giant battle between the United States and Japanese fleets in the Solomon Islands coincident with the bitter struggle for control of Guadalcanal air base.

Secretary of the Navy Knox declared:

"There is no concealing there's a good, stiff, tough fight on."

Knox said the outcome had not yet been determined.

Asked if he thought the American positions could be held against the onslaught of a powerful Japanese naval armada and troop reinforcements, Knox replied:

"I certainly hope so. I expect so. I don't want to make any predictions, but every man out there, afloat and ashore, will give a good account of himself."

In the absence of specific details, Knox's comment reflected a restrained optimism and indicated at least that the battle was far from one-sided despite the fact that the Japanese were bringing their heaviest forces to bear.

While the navy carefully guarded its fleet movements, Washington naval sources saw the likelihood of a sea engagement possibly even greater than the battle at Midway or in the Coral Sea.

The navy announced yesterday that a large enemy fleet concentration had been sighted near Shortland island, 260 miles northwest of Guadalcanal, in addition to the strong flotilla already hovering off Guadalcanal itself.

As the battle raged toward a showdown, bitter ground fighting in the tangled Guadalcanal jungles developed between American Marines, reinforced by regular U. S. army troops, and the encroaching enemy.

Newly-landed Japanese artillery was reported heavily shelling American positions, while offshore U. S. torpedo boats darted in to attack enemy warships. In the opening phases, the navy said, the swift mosquito craft rammed home a probable hit on a Japanese cruiser.

Meanwhile, in other zones of the far-flung Pacific conflict, Japanese invasion forces in the Aleutian Islands were reported undergoing terrific bombardment at Kiska, their last foothold in the northern archipelago, and new Allied gains were cited on the New Guinea front.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters in Australia said United Nations troops had pushed the Japanese slightly farther back in fighting in the Owen Stanley mountains.

TALK ON INDIANS
IS GRANGE FEATURE

An illustrated talk on the Navajo Indians of New Mexico was a feature of the lecture hour of Goshen grange Friday evening.

Miss Hazel Linn, assistant secretary of the Salem Red Cross chapter, explained the chapter activities, particularly the need for cooperation in its war efforts and preparation for civilian defense work.

One new member was elected and applications were received from three persons for membership. It was reported that Carl Solmen, a former member, is now serving overseas, but his location could not be divulged.

Goshen grange will be represented Sunday at a meeting in Canfield, to make arrangements to suitably recognize Mahoning county inductees as they leave for army or navy service. The master, Ernest Kappfer, will represent the grange.

To cooperate in the conservation of automobile tires and gasoline, the project meetings scheduled for the remainder of the year have been cancelled, but the regular Pomona grange meeting on Nov. 28 will be held at Dublin grange, and the fifth degree will be conferred on a class sometime in November.

The Goshen Juvenile grange enjoyed a Halloween lunch and frolic Friday evening. The Goshen grange program for Friday, Oct. 30, will be a Halloween event.

A New "Policy"

AKRON, Oct. 17.—To help Summit county fruit growers harvest a heavy apple crop more than 100 life insurance salesmen took a day off from their regular work today and reported to the orchards, in response to a plea by the United States Employment Service.

MR. WILLKIE REPORTING

Wendell Willkie's promised report on his recent tour has had the priceless buildup of White House sponsorship. Most of his countrymen will be waiting for the information he was able to collect on his government-sponsored trip around the world.

Meanwhile they will continue to draw on their imagination concerning Mr. Willkie's status. Their conclusions are as far apart as it is possible for conclusions to be; Mr. Willkie is a statesman, or Mr. Willkie is a fraud.

Time will tell that story to everybody's satisfaction. One thing about Mr. Willkie at the moment is clear, however. As much as any public figure, he has demonstrated ability to bore through superficialities and get at the truth. His hoarse warning in 1940 that Americans should give all their attention to production in order to be strong and free showed deep insight into the production problem crystallized by the beginning of war. He has done more to clarify the fundamental issue between free men and authoritarians than any other individual, both as writer and speaker; even critics have borrowed his ideas and phrases to add their own expositions of the war.

Mr. Willkie will do a workmanlike job of reporting on what he saw while visiting other nations in the anti-Axis bloc. His admirers believe he will let the chips fall where they will. Admirers who also are admirers of President Roosevelt—and many Americans have found themselves sharing their admiration in this way—believe it was planned that way. They believe the President is just as anxious for his countrymen to have the benefit of Mr. Willkie's reporting as Mr. Willkie is.

Certainly the press, which is anxious to be able to give its readers the benefit of all the information about the war that can be obtained, welcomes the privilege of adding so distinguished a correspondent. As Walter Lippmann has pointed out in discussing relations between the President and the press, both would benefit from an active political opposition furnishing information that otherwise wouldn't be brought to light.

HITLER'S POLITICAL GENERALS

Rumors of two more German generals being ousted are confirmed. Plainly in evidence, though unproven, has been the steady undermining by the Nazi regime of the German military tradition of independence. The army that served the state because that was its privilege and duty now serves Adolf Hitler personally.

Its soldiers have taken an oath of allegiance to him. Its generals, when they have insisted too strongly on using their own military judgment, have been forced to yield to his political judgment. There is no room in the authoritarian state for any authority other than that which comes from the Head Man; that is the fuhrer principle. Anyone who forgets that inside Germany there has been a revolution incidental to the manifestations of Nazi violence outside Germany is losing touch with the trend of events.

Those persons particularly who comfort themselves with the thought that the German army will rise up eventually, oust Hitler and his crowd and try to regain respect for Germany by reverting to the old Prussian credo of service to the state are going to be badly fooled. From all indications Hitler is taking no chances with any military leaders whose personal loyalty can be questioned. Of the group that surrounded him in 1933, only a few faces are left—and they are not the faces of Germany's justly famed tacticians. They are the faces of political generals who owe their positions to Hitler—a fact that may have momentous bearing on the outcome of the war.

GUADALCANAL

Twelve months ago Guadalcanal was a rarely noticed name in the south seas, of importance only to a handful of scheming Japanese plotting a campaign to dominate everything between their islands and Australia.

Today it is the scene of a climactic battle between the United States and Japan to determine a point of advantage in a world war. Every household knows Guadalcanal as intimately as the other strange names that have preceded it since last December—Wake, Guam, Bataan, Corregidor and Port Moresby.

It is one of the key points in the extended strategy of a war being fought throughout the world to determine how human beings shall live in every habitable place on earth. There are many others, once strange, now growing familiar, just as 25 years ago the names of villages and wooded places in France became milestones in history.

Guadalcanal will be well known to future generations. A decisive battle was fought there. A decisive battle was fought off Midway. Turning points were reached at Dunkirk and a place called Dakar. Bengasi and Madagascar will not be forgotten, nor will Rangoon, Hainan island, Dutch Harbor and Crete—all names of places prominent in the war that shrank the world.

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, October 18

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a very fortunate one, with many exceedingly active conditions, affecting the future and giving stability and endurance to solid interests and possessions. It is safe to invest in real property although not taking many chances or gambles. Personal lavishness may also threaten.

Those whose birthday it is stand at the threshold of a very active and prosperous year. There may be a breaking up of static conditions, or old investments may come to life. Real possessions should thrive. Shun a too lavish pleasure. Shun legal entanglements. Travel is favorable.

A child born on this day should be active, enterprising and ambitious. It will attain happiness and fair fortune.

For Monday, October 19

Monday's astrological forecast is for a moderately lively condition, but may be attended by a sudden disruption or possibly a family estrangement. It is urged that much discretion, amiability and good nature be maintained.

Those whose birthday it is may have a successful and active year if they keep firm leash on tongue and temper. Disputes and wrangling might end in family division.

A child born on this day may be extravagant, kindly and pleasure-loving and moderately successful. It may have romantic crises.

Here is a news item saying: "The Army is determined to maintain a ratio of 6.5 doctors per 1000 men in service." And what we're wondering about is what that 5 physician is supposed to do.

Here is a news item that says: "The President of the Teamsters' Union gets $30,000 a year, plus income taxes and expenses." We didn't know that there were even that many dollar's worth of horses in the country.

Goebbels tells Germany to avoid over-optimism. He might also tell 'em it will be well for them to stay out of the way of those block-buster bombs.

Here is a news story saying: "A man has taken his sixth wife." The OPA should freeze his matrimonial activities for the duration, at least.

THE WINNING NUMBERS!

TREATMENT OF CHRONIC PAINS

Doctor Reports On Study of Old Afflictions

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
ONE of the minor, silent revolutions, but none the less important and striking advances in medical science, has been in the study of those old afflictions of mankind

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

—the pains around the muscles and tendons, like lumbago, sciatica, sacro-iliac, wry neck, tennis elbow, etc.

Such terms as "lumbago" or "sciatica" are now used almost exclusively by the laity and whether they know it or not, they are nothing but labels, mere smoke screens for ignorance. A patient is all pleased with himself when he has learned to say, "I have lumbago." He thinks it shows a profound knowledge of the situation, when all it means is "I have a pain in the general region of the lumbar muscles of the back."

Now the medical profession was in exactly this blissful psychological state of mind fifty years ago, and they used the terms lumbago and sciatica as if they had definite meanings. Since then we have learned that there is always something behind these terms. A few weeks ago in this column was discussed the latest findings on sciatica—that in over half the cases it is due to protrusion of an intervertebral disk, and can be relieved by surgery.

Pain In The Shoulder

A quiet accumulation of information has occurred around that humble but troublesome affliction, chronic pain in the shoulder. Forty years ago it was "rheumatism" (that name satisfied everybody) and the diagnosis was made when the patient made a wry face, put his opposite hand on his shoulder and rubbed and shrugged. And the treatment was to put a piece of flannel over it and apply a hot iron.

Now, according to an article I have been reading by Dr. N. C. Moxley, of Montreal, Canada, we have quite definite conceptions of the three common causes of chronic shoulder pain: They are: (1) inflammation of the bursa under the acromial process of the shoulder blade; (2) calcified deposits around the tendons and muscles; and (3) rupture of one of the shoulder tendons.

When doctors fifty years ago began to x-ray their patients with shoulder pain they often found that the bursa between the arm bone and the shoulder blade, which should be a nice oiled cushion to keep the joint sliding carefully had become calcified. It was a piece of rock. Nowadays surgeons dissect out this calcified bursa under local anesthesia with very happy results.

Another method that has contributed to our knowledge is the development of aseptic surgery. If a shoulder pain gets unbearable and the flannel and hot iron don't work, the surgeon can cut in safely and see if there is anything he can fix. This is what he does with the ruptured short rotator tendon.

Modern Treatments
Under treatment the wider employment of massage, electric treatments such as diathermy and faradism, the injection of novocain into the tender spots, has done wonders.

Rupture of the short rotator tendon occurs usually in middle-aged people after strain from lifting or a fall. They feel a snap in the shoulder accompanied by severe pain and muscle spasm. X-ray examination is of little value in this type of case, but the history, plus the fact that movements of the shoulder in certain directions causes pain, makes the diagnosis.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
F. F. Webster Springs, W. Va.:—I read that you warned against the danger of giving a second shot of tetanus antitoxin. My six-year-old son had diphtheria preventive when six years old. The doctor wants him to have a second dose on entering school. Would this not be dangerous, as it is horse serum also?

Answer: No, diphtheria toxoid has no horse serum. The second dose should be given on entering school.

G. F. Los Angeles, Calif.:—What is the best time of year to have the tonsils removed?
Answer: There is no choice. One time is as good as another.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp to Dr. Logan Clendening, 235 E. 45th st., New York. FDR Gets Check to Fight Japs

Myrtle Bergheim, a White House secretary, is shown holding a check for $70,000 received by President Roosevelt from the navy yard workers at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, who contributed one day's pay for war relief. The check is framed in a piece of metal from a Jap Zero fighter that was shot down over Pearl Harbor. This is a phonograph.

Pilgrim in MANHATTAN by MARGARET BELL HOUSTON

Chloe Cameron had come to the Samuel's Bureau of Entertainment in search of work as an entertainer. Instead, she became secretary at the bureau under a Miss Jepson. Chloe hopes that some day she would have an opportunity to substitute for some artist and sing her own cowboy and Indian songs. One Saturday forenoon, Chloe, alone in the office, is revising her rejected book, "Songs of the Trail," when a handsome man comes in, seeking an entertainer for what he describes as a "highbrow" occasion. He turns down all her suggestions and, as a last resort, she offers her own specialties without connecting herself with them. "I'll pay the Bureau a commission if he takes me," she thought. But he rejects these too, and prepares to leave.

CHAPTER TWO

"If you could come in," she said as he picked up his hat, "some time when Mr. Samuel's is here..." "Haven't you shown me the lot?" "Yes, but Mr. Samuel's..." "Is he more persuasive?" his delightful smile. "This party isn't open to persuasion. However..." "I can't mean that. The Bureau has been reorganized. We're adding new talent, discovering it, all the time..." "I'm glad to hear that. There's no hurry, I believe. I was going to say that you mentioned several numbers there that might interest me later. The 'Jack Rabbit Girl,' for one instance..."

He took out his card and wrote something on it. "You know, at least," he said, "what I don't need. And that's about all I know myself."

"Thank you," Chloe answered. "We'll get in touch with you." When he had gone, she looked at his card.

"Mr. Rann Sturgis," she read. "The Stratmore." And a telephone number which he had written on it. She dropped the card into her purse and looked at her watch. Precisely one o'clock. She went to the hat-rack, put on the moss-green hat and the coat she had brought from home, ruffling the big gray-fur collar about her face.

The Jack Rabbit Girl, she thought, powdering her nose, setting a brown lock of hair.... What a name!.... Well, if Mr. Samuel's doesn't get in some new talent—which he won't—I'll certainly call up Mr. Sturgis regarding the Jack Rabbit Girl.

Or maybe he'll come back for his pen. For there it lay—on Miss Jepson's desk. A handsome pen—gold, with an onyx cap and band. It was his, she knew, for she had noticed it when he wrote the telephone number on his card.

A gift, of course—from a woman. No man would buy a pen like that. No use to telephone him now. He hadn't had time to get home. Chloe dropped the pen into her purse.

A dull November rain blurred the lights and thickened traffic. Umbrellas blossomed like mushrooms, and Chloe opened hers, a round red one. It bobbed amid the seething, wet, impatient crowd till Chloe snapped it shut at the subway entrance and plunged into a train, a damp shape pressed flat by other damp shapes, and emerged at Christopher Street. Then it spread open again and sheltered Chloe into a bakery one block south.

This was Chloe's birthday and she was by way of investing in an angel-food cake she had seen that morning, a cake snowed under with icing, garlanded in pink-sugar roses and inscribed with Happy Birthday—a replica in miniature of the cake that Chinese Gus had baked for her last year.

That was in Oklahoma, in little Wahalla, down in the wild red hills. Gus had known she was giving a party and he had come in from the ranch with the annual cake.

What a party! It was November, of course, but golden weather. All the sky, east and west, had been full of the sunset. And when the dark came down, paper lanterns had bloomed in the cottonwood trees, and the colored string band had come with their fiddles and banjos and guitars, and the cowboys had come riding in from the ranches. Round dances and square dances with Big Dave calling the figures, and all the rugs up in the living-room and the dining-room, and the floor smooth as glass.

Chloe's mother had danced, too, looking so young nobody would have dreamed she had a daughter with so many candles on her cake. (Twenty-two last year, and time marching on!) Looking so young, Chloe's mother, and dancing so much with Nate Barlow that nobody could have guessed which of the two he was courting.

Except that they all knew. It was just that Nate, being deliberate and dignified, had lost Chloe as often as he found her, and much more rapidly, in as grand a whirl as you ever saw. And Chloe had worn a floating dress the color of buttercups, and danced through the soles of her silver slippers.

Who would have supposed that in less than a year she would be coming to New York? But there was no staying on in the house after her mother died. No staying there alone, missing her, listening for her. She had died quietly, suddenly, in the night.

Three years before her father had been killed when thrown by a horse he was breaking. Her father, who had been born on a horse, as he used to say. But he used to say, too, that he would die with his boots on, and he had done just that.

Judge Cameron, they called him. But he had never been a judge. He didn't want to be. He was just a lawyer who had been raised on a ranch. Just a rangy, slow-spoken, absent-minded lawyer, droll and sentimental and wise, and fiery as the devil when you got him roused.

And now for Chloe there was no staying in Wahalla. . . . Of course, she might have married Nate Barlow or got a job teaching in the junior college there. It was a question of doing one or the other, for the money was about gone. During that last year her mother had seen their investments crumble, had worried badly, not telling Chloe. She wanted Chloe to be happy, and she hoped Chloe would marry Nate Barlow, who was president of a bank.

No teaching or marrying for Chloe. She had taken the little that was left and come on to New York to find wider opportunities, stimulating contacts, recognition, and all that. There were no publishers in Wahalla, no big radio stations, no large and cultivated audiences, no entertainment bureaus. Nothing, in fact, but friends. Friends who wished one well, but who didn't understand how ambition may keep one awake at night.

TIRE INSPECTOR

You must have tires inspected between Nov. 22 and Jan. 31.

Five tires for each car. Serial numbers will be filed and checked.

Motorists, holding more than five tires, will be denied rationing books and will face a $10,000 fine and 10 years' imprisonment. Tire inspectors face the same penalty.

Dispose of excess tires. Government will purchase at ceiling prices.

East is under rationing now, so the basic "A" book will be tailored to provide for only eight months of driving. Thus all ration books expire next July 21.

Sketches above should be of interest to all motorists, highlighting, as they do, the important features of the gasoline and tire rationing regulations being put in operation. The east already has gasoline rationing. The rest of the nation comes under that regulation Nov. 22, with registration beginning Nov. 9. In the now unrationed states, motorists will have to list all their tires by serial number and certify that they have no more than five per vehicle. Eastern motorists must dispose of their idle tires by Nov. 22. The government will purchase excess tires at ceiling prices. Within a week the government will announce how and under what conditions rubber will be provided for the "essential" mileage for all passenger cars.

Miss Jane Courtney Bride In Episcopal Church Rites

Miss Jane Courtney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Courtney of Elkworth ave., became the bride of Richard Shoop, son of Mrs. Minnie Shoop of Superior st., yesterday afternoon, at the Episcopal church in East Liverpool.

Miss Lanney Is Bride of John Simonds

Announcement was made today of the marriage of Miss Dorris Lanney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lanney of W. Second st., to John Simonds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Al Simonds of W. Fourth st. The wedding took place at 10 a. m. last Saturday at St. Paul's Catholic church. Rev. Herbert Cook officiated at the nuptial high mass. "Ave Marie" was played during the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, before an altar decorated with white chrysanthemums and ferns, wore a white tulle gown with long fitted sleeves with a full skirt ending in a long train. Her fingertip veil was held in place with a halo of flowers fashioned of the veiling. She carried a silver rosary entwined with orchids.

Miss Mildred Lanney served as her sister's maid of honor and wore a pink tulle gown with a shawl collar and carried a bouquet of red roses. Harry James Tompkins served as best man.

A breakfast and reception were held at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Whetstone and daughter Dolores and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Whetstone of Youngstown, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Crawford and family of East Liverpool, and Mr. and Mrs. George Alice of Canton.

Mr. Simonds is employed by the Mullins Manufacturing Corp.

Mr. and Mrs. Minser Wed 50 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer K. Minser will hold open house from 2 to 4 p. m. and from 7 to 9 p. m. Tuesday at their home on the Damascus rd. in celebration of their 50th wedding anniversary.

They were married Oct. 20, 1892, at the home of Mrs. Minser's parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mead. Mr. Minser is the son of Clayton and Rebecca Minser of Salem. They have two children, Earl H. Minser and Edna May Weingert.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ehrhart, son George and daughter, Mrs. Earl May, and granddaughter of Aetna st., left Friday evening for Camp Grant, Ill., for a weekend visit with their son and brother, Pvt. David Ehrhart, who is being transferred to another point.

Wellsville High Overpowers Salem Quakers By 27-0 Count

WILLIAMS TALLIES TWICE AS BENGALS WIN THIRD IN ROW

Shasteen, Nocera, Wise Stand Out As Locals Drop Third Game

An alert and hard-charging forward wall and a stellar set of backs gave Coach John "Monk" Montgomery's Wellsville High eleven its third straight win last night as the Bengals rode rough-shod over the Salem Quakers, 27-0, before a slim crowd.

The up and coming Tigers took advantage of every break offered them as they scored twice on intercepted passes in the final quarter and set up two others with a recovered fumble and a blocked kick.

From the statistics side of the game, the locals put up a nice battle as they tied Wellsville in first downs, gained but 36 yards less than their opponents on rushing plays and outgained them via the aerial route. But it was bad field generalship plus a decided lack of aggressive blocking and effective tackling which sent the Quakers down to their third consecutive loss.

Wellsville Scores 20

For three quarters, the Quakers held the down river eleven to a 7-0 lead and it was in the final frame against a mixture of Salem first and second stringers that the Tigers put on their 20 point spree to sew up the win. The Quakers, however, never threatened seriously until the last period when Harry Ehrhart's passes and gallops carried the ball to the Bengal 29.

The first score came in the second period when Chuck Campbell carried one of Frank Enten's punts back to the Salem 16 from the midfield stripe. Short runs by Campbell and Mike Williams, pile driving fullback, and a Williams-Kinde pass carried the ball to the one from where Williams plunged over. Vic McIntyre entered the game at that point to kick the extra point.

For the rest of the first half and throughout the third quarter, the game saw-sawed between the 30 yard lines. Dick Lantz stopped the Bengals on a three yard stripe which put the Quakers in a hole. After an exchange of punts, the Bengals began a drive on the Salem 46 which culminated in a second touchdown after Williams and "Soup" Liberatore had carried the ball to the three in five plays. Williams dived through the middle for the tally and McIntyre failed on the extra point attempt when Campbell dropped the pass from center.

Brown and Lawton intercepted Salem second stringers' passes in the last chapter for scores, the former galloping 42 yards and the latter ripping off a 50 yard sprint. McIntyre kicked both extra points.

Shasteen, Nocera Shine

The only bright spots in the Quakers' otherwise dismal performance was the stellar play of Guards Gordon "Tubby" Shasteen and Carmen "Toots" Nocera and Linebacker Ray Wise. These three played outstanding ball throughout the contest and let nary a thing get past them for many yards.

Coach Ray Overturf stated that their would be several changes in the Salem lineup before next Friday night when the Quakers face the Big Red of Struthers on the local gridiron.

The loss was the third of the year for the Salem eleven as well as their third in a row after early season wins over Sebring and Ravenna.

CHOTEAU, Mont.—For 10 years, Devil Skin, a faithful ranch horse, carried his 75-year-old master, Billy Miller, to town every day, where he played cards with his faithful cronies at a local tavern. Since the recent death of his master, Devil Skin still trots to town every morning and remains at the hitching post of the tavern in the event his master might still want him. Late in the afternoon he returns to the ranch.

Halds widened their margin over their Grate Ladies league bowling rivals as they blanked the Youngstown Office at the Grate alleys while the No. 2 and No. 3 teams battled it out with Coys winning two from the Trades Class.

Kaufmans bowed 2-1 in their match with Damascus to slip down in the standings while Eagles No. 1 handed Finneys a two game beating to move up.

In other league matches, the Salem China dropped a little deeper into the cellar as they lost three to Eagles No. 2 and Schwartz won two from Endres-Gross.

Meissners and Eatons continued their deadlock in the standings of the Washingtonville league as both won shutout matches last night at the B-G alleys in Washingtonville, the former downing the Crescent Machines and the latter winning over the Crescent Bulldogs.

Singles moved into a tie for the No. 2 spot with three easy wins over the Town Tavern. The Super Service remained in its place with a 2-1 conquest of the Schloans while Firestones drubbed National Rubber, 3-0.

DEATHS

LEFA LUCILLE VINCENT
Lefa Lucille Vincent, 27, died at her home on the Albany rd. at 3 a. m. today following a four-year illness.

The daughter of Lee B. and La-Rue Vincent, she was born in Moravia, Oct. 14, 1915, but spent virtually all her life in Salem. She was a graduate of Salem High school, class of '34, graduate nurse of Salem City hospital, class of '37, and was a member of the Presbyterian church.

She is survived by her parents; one sister, Mrs. Frances Mae Sangre; and one brother, Donald L., of East Cleveland.

Funeral service will be held at 2:30 p. m. Monday at the home in charge of Rev. Raymond D. Walter and burial will be in Grandview cemetery. Friends may call at the home anytime after noon Sunday.

GLAMOUR IS NEEDED ON FARM, IS CLAIM

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17 — What the farm needs, congress was told today, is some glamor.

And unless something is done to keep farm hands from seeking that elusive quality elsewhere, the house agriculture committee reported, there may be "a few million hungry stomachs" to awaken the people to a "better understanding and appreciation of those who till the soil."

Warning that a critical shortage of food may develop within another year, the committee said:

"Industrial plants, managers and workers are very promptly given public commendation for some special feat of production. But there is no glamor on the farm... it is no wonder that our young men seek the field of glory and glamor."

There are ample food and fiber supplies on hand now due to accumulation of supplies, a favorable farm season this year and "the wholehearted response" of farmers to pleas for increased production, the committee said, but it added:

"The present supplies will be rapidly consumed. Few people have

Solomon Commander

Maj. Gen. Millard F. Harmon, above, is the commander of the American air and ground troops participating in operations in the Solomon Islands where a great land-sea-air battle for the strategic Guadalcanal island is being waged.

Any comprehension of the magnitude of shipments of food to our Allies or the shipments which will be required in the future. The demands for our armed forces and Allies will increase, rather than diminish."

Aside from glamor, the farmers could use higher prices for their products, the committee said.

Nursing Class Open

Enrollments are still being taken for the Red Cross Home Nursing course. Classes are being held at the American Legion home and any person, club or group interested in the course may call Mrs. Ann Tolerton, 5595.

as a mission teacher. Brother Anthony who was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., and taught there many years, was in Hong Kong when it fell to the Japs. Along with many other Americans, he was interned. He is shown wearing a garment made from a sheet smuggled to him by a Chinese nurse while he was held by the Japs. He has been convalescing in New York City since his arrival on the diplomatic ship Gripsholm.

Describes Sinking of Quincy

Lieut. Comm. Harry B. Heneberger (right), 39, of Worcester, Mass., gunnery officer aboard the U. S. cruiser Quincy, in telling the details of the battle to Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet. The Quincy and two other cruisers, the Astoria and Vincennes, were sunk by the Japs during U. S. invasion of the Solomons. This is an official U. S. Navy photo.

Major Battle for Guadalcanal Imminent

Japanese troops have been heavily reinforced on Guadalcanal, shown here contrasted with Long Island, and a major battle for possession of the strategic island in the Solomons is believed imminent. A naval communic disclosed that Jap naval units bombarded the airport and shore installations held by U. S. forces. Covered by warships, Jap transports landed reinforcements on the north coast.

Theatre Attractions

The long awaited musical show,

"Holiday Inn", is due at the State theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday with Bing Crosby, Fred Astaire, Marjorie Reynolds, Virginia Dale and Walter Abel.

Crosby, as a night club singer, breaks away from his partners, Astaire and Virginia Dale, because he's tired of grinding away at singing and dancing in these clubs. So he retires to a farm, but working it single-handed leaves no time at all to even look at the calendar.

He conceives the idea of turning the farm into an inn, to be open only on holidays. There being only 15 important holidays during a year, Bing figures he can rest the other 350.

Jeanette MacDonald and Robert Young are coming to the State Wednesday only, in "Cairo".

Betty Grable, John Payne and Victor Mature have the featured roles in "Footlight Serenade", which is scheduled for the State Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Concluding at the State tonight is "Tish" with Marjorie Main, Zezu Pitts and Aline Mahchm.

Sunday and Monday's feature at the Grand is George Brent and Jean Bennett in "Twin Beds". Also showing is "Bombs Over Burma", with Anna May Wong. A double feature, "Youth on Parade" and "Saboteur Squad", will be at the Grand Tuesday and Wednesday. Jinx Falkenberg is featured in "Lucky Legs" which is coming to the Grand Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Also showing is "Thundering Hoofs" with Tim Holt.

M. Nelson told the nation's newspapers today they had done a magnificent and unprecedented job in carrying on the nation-wide scrap salvage campaign.

Addressing a group of publishers and executives who have served as members of the newspapers' united scrap metal drive committee, the War Production board chairman said:

"The job that the newspapers have done is absolutely unprecedented in this country. It has been magnificent. The results surpassed the fondest hopes that I entertained."
